Learnerships

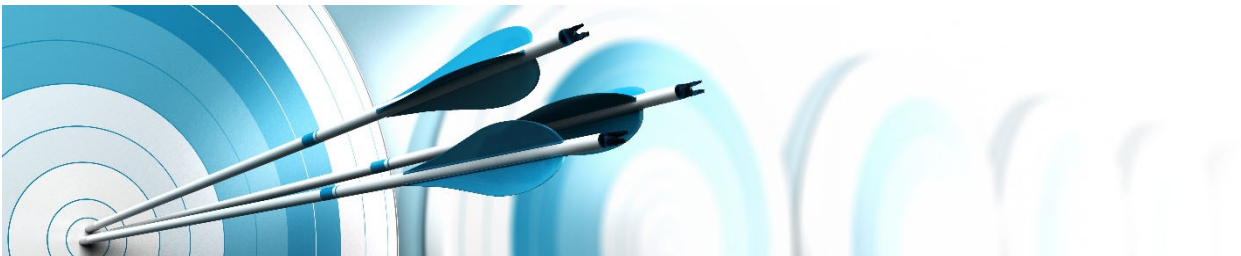

ENJO Consultants are accredited to offer a wide variety of qualifications and skills programmes through registered learnerships aligned to the requirements of the South African education and training landscape. These learnerships are designed to combine structured theoretical learning with practical workplace experience, enabling learners to gain nationally recognised qualifications while simultaneously developing valuable workplace competencies.

Learnerships provide significant benefits to both employers and learners. For organisations, they create an opportunity to invest meaningfully in employee development, improve workplace productivity, and contribute towards the growth of skilled professionals within South Africa. For learners, they provide access to quality education, workplace exposure, and improved employability opportunities.

There are various ways in which companies can enhance their B-BBEE scorecard through strategic investment in training and development initiatives. ENJO Consultants partners with organisations to implement learnerships and other accredited training interventions that support Skills Development targets in line with B-BBEE requirements. These initiatives can contribute positively towards points on the B-BBEE scorecard while simultaneously assisting companies in building a competent and future-ready workforce.

In addition to learnership implementation, ENJO Consultants offers guidance and support to companies seeking practical and compliant strategies relating to training and development expenditure. Our team works closely with organisations and consultants to identify suitable learning solutions that align with operational requirements, workforce development goals, and transformation objectives.

Companies and consultants are welcome to contact ENJO Consultants to discuss customised training and development strategies, available learnership opportunities, grant funding possibilities, and effective approaches to maximising B-BBEE Skills Development contributions.
